BIOGRAPHY

Over the course of her career, Lucy-Maude has developed a diversified practice in civil and commercial litigation, construction law and employment law. As such, she has pleaded before all levels of Quebec civil courts. Curious and tenacious by nature, Lucy-Maude has developed a particular ability to dissect and master complex issues from a factual or technical standpoint, in order to deploy the best dispute resolution strategies to meet her clients' objectives.

Lucy-Maude has been called upon to strategically advise various actors in the construction industry in the management and settlement of legal proceedings, as well as assist them in real-time disputes on major construction sites.

Lucy-Maude's expertise in employment law has led her to frequently represent the interests of executives in the negotiation of employment contracts and severance agreements. Lucy-Maude also represents both employers and employees in current or anticipated disputes concerning non-solicitation and non-competition undertakings.

In addition, Lucy-Maude has developed particular expertise in conducting various types of workplace investigations involving sensitive and complex issues. She has acted several times as an independent investigator and is duly accredited by the Quebec Bar to conduct investigations into psychological harassment in the workplace.

In addition to her practice, Lucy-Maude is committed to supporting her colleagues in the management and growth of the firm, including mentoring, recruitment and the development of internal policies.
